Saemi: Actually, I've never thought about my role model. However, if a role model means someone who [is / are] worthy of my respect, then I have that kind of person. Her name is Lee Yura and she is one year older than me. I met her when she was a sophomore mentor at a study mentoring club. When I was a freshman, I didn't have any idea about how to study. However, she always answered my silly questions kindly, [waiting / waited] for me to understand her explanations completely. In addition, once she taught me something, she made me [explain / to explain] [it / them] back to her in my own words. That method really helped me [understand / to understand] difficult concepts better. I became interested in and more confident about studying. I don't think a role model needs to be someone famous or special. Role models are not that far away. Your parents, sisters, brothers, or friends can all be role models!

Announcer: Did you enjoy listening to the students' stories about their role models? If you don't have a role model yet, why not set a positive example and try to be the best person [that / what] you can be? I'll be back tomorrow evening with a new report.

Q1. Who is Saemi's role model?

Q2. How did Saemi's mentor help her understand difficult concepts better?
