

Similes and Metaphors by The Bazillions

Similes and metaphors are similar but nothing more than a comparison in different ways.

Similes use like or as
and metaphors need none of that.
They just say exactly what they wanna say.

(Metaphor)
You really are the apple of my eye

(Simile)
Hanging with you is as easy as pie

(Metaphor)
You got a smile that lights up the room

(Simile)
Let's stay together like the stars and the moon.

Similes and metaphors are
similar but nothing more
than a comparison in different ways.
Similes use like or as
and metaphors need none of that.
They just say exactly what they wanna say

(Metaphor)
Sometimes you're hot and sometimes you're cold

(Simile)
Then again you can be good as gold

(Metaphor)
Into each life a little rain must fall

(Simile)
Don't just sit there like a bump on a log

Similes and metaphors are
similar but nothing more than a comparison in different ways.

Similes use like or as
and metaphors need none of that.
They just say exactly what they wanna say.

Whoa, yeah
Whoa, yeah

And when you understand and say it's perfectly clear,
don't you know that'll be music
to my ears?

(That's another metaphor.)
(Yeah, now you're getting it.)

Whoa!

Similes and metaphors are
similar but nothing more Similes and metaphors are
similar but nothing more Similes and metaphors are
similar but nothing more Similes and metaphors are similar but nothing more
