

Dutch Prime Minister Mark Rutte of the VVD Liberal party celebrates after exit poll results of the parliament

as a "vote against extremists" while one senior European source told AFP on condition of anonymity: "Common sense strikes back."

Foreign Minister Jean-Marc Ayrault of France, where the far-right Marine Le Pen is currently seen winning the first round of the presidential election in April, congratulated Rutte for "stopping the rise of the far-right."

'Not rid of me yet'

Wilders had pledged to close the borders to Muslim immigrants, shut mosques, ban sales of the Koran and leave the EU if he won the polls.

He thanked his supporters in a message on Twitter, with his party set to boost its number of MPs to 19. The PVV won 15 seats in the 2012 elections, which had slipped to 12 in the outgoing parliament.

"We won seats. The first gains are made. And Rutte is not rid of me yet," he said.

Eyeing weeks, if not months, of protracted coalition talks ahead, Wilders offered early Thursday to work with the new government.

"I would still like to co-govern as the PVV, if possible. But if that doesn't work ... we'll support the cabinet, where needed, on the issues that are important to us."

Most of the other leaders, including Rutte have vowed not to work with Wilders, denouncing his incendiary rhetoric and his go-it-alone attitude.

Trump Uses
5-Year-old
Samsung
SmartPhone

21029
3/14/18

TOPIC : Trump has loved Samsung Galaxy S3.

Members opinion me (sebin)

- I feel proud that our IT business has improved compared to America.

Dabin

- It may be that Trump is appealing to our country.

Jimin

- why don't you tell Apple why you're going to be evolving?

Ha Eun

- Use the iPad.

Hogyeong

- I am annoyed that Samsung has taken away the business of Apple.

amid 가운데에 confirm 확인하다. handset 수화기 encrypt 암호화하다. Jeopardize 위태롭게 하다.

egregiously 지독하게 implement 시행하다.
commonsense 상식적인 insecure 불안정한.
dining room 식당 come out with ~을 보여준다.

info 정보